"Į Šventą Kazimierą" – Motiejus Gustaitis

Lietos akimi Tau matyti tėvynės gaisro slibinai, ir žmonės ramūs išvaikyti, jų klotis keičias taip nūnai, jog ryt kas laukia tūlą sritį, vien Tu – Šventasis – bežinai, kuriam globoti apveizdingai skirta tėvynė nelaiminga.

Reflections from this week's liturgy

In the first reading from the book of Exodus, we learn that Moses pronounced God's name: Yahweh, or the Lord, and God answered him back, saying that He is a good-willing and considerate God, patient, generous and just. Then Moses falls to the ground and begs for God's blessings in favour of Israel, a stubborn but sincere people. That brings us to the question of the name of God. The Bible has different names for God, the most famous being Yahweh, which probably means "I am who I am". This name is shrouded in mystery and has been the source of polemics for centuries. It is also translated as "the Lord", and most Bibles use this term, but some Bible editions use the name "Yahweh", which is one way of pronouncing it. The source of polemics is that no one knows how to pronounce it for sure, since the original Hebrew Bible writes only the four consonant letters YHWH, and does not give the vowels. These four letters are called the Tetragrammaton, a Greek term, and only Moses and the High Priest of Israel knew how to pronounce it. When Jerusalem was destroyed by the Babylonians in 586 B.C., the Temple was also destroyed, and the knowledge of this pronunciation was lost forever.
